Dylan D. FPTI

Dylan's passion for fitness began at a young age while playing hockey. Being the middle brother of three instilled a strong sense of competition in him, and he consistently practiced with his brothers to improve his technique and form. Dylan continued to coach his younger brother after he graduated from school, ensuring he pushed himself to achieve higher scores and reach his physical fitness goals. This experience later inspired Dylan to pursue a career as a personal trainer.

Dylan is a graduate of Focus Personal Training Institute's 600-hour Master Course Program. He is CPR/AED-certified and is currently pursuing his NASM certification. His personal training style involves safely challenging the client and encouraging them to test their limitations. It brings him great joy to watch his client accomplish something they didn't think they could achieve. His personal training mantra is "You are stronger than you think."
